

FRANK L. RAINEY, NOTED TEACHER, DIES SUDDENLY

Acting President Of Centre College Succumbs To Heart Attack At Home

FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD TODAY

Had Been Connected With Danville School For Twenty Eight Years

As the result of a sudden heart attack, Dr. Frank L. Rainey, acting president of Centre College, died at his home in Danville Wednesday night.

Doctor Rainey, who was named acting president of Centre College June 1, 1936, had spent the day at his office. Returning to his home at 5:30 p. m. he complained of being ill and his wife summoned Dr. J. Rice Cowan, who was at his bedside at the time of his death.

Although suffering a heart attack about four and one-half years ago, which necessitated his taking a leave of absence from his college duties, Doctor Rainey had recovered sufficiently to return to work, and was apparently in good health.

A native of Lafayette, Ind., Doctor Rainey was a graduate of Purdue University, receiving his B. S. degree in 1899. From 1899 until 1895 he taught in the high schools at Logansport, Ind., and Winona, Wis.

Doctor Rainey attended the University of Chicago in 1896, 1897 and 1900 as a graduate student. In 1898 he was instructor in histology at the Rush Medical school at Chicago. After serving from 1901 to 1903 as acting professor of biology at the Michigan Military Institute, Doctor Rainey served as biology instructor at Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa, from 1903 to 1908.

Leaving the Iowa school, Doctor Rainey became professor of biology at Centre in 1908. At one time he served as registrar of Centre and in 1928 was named dean to succeed the late Dr. Charles D. Crooks. In special services in 1932, students paid honor to his 25 years of service and presented him with an inscribed gold watch as a token of their esteem and appreciation. He was named acting president of Centre in June, 1936, to succeed Dr. Charles J. Turck, resigned.

In 1925, Parsons College bestowed upon him an honorary Doctor of Science degree. This was followed by Transylvania College bestowing a similar honor in 1930. In 1935, Centre College honored him with an honorary Doctor of Law degree, an honor never given to any other member of the faculty of that school.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Belle Murdock, of Chil- (Continued on Page Four)

W. C. A. membership-finance group, and a committee of twenty-five girls. Women may join as many of the Y. W. C. A. groups as they desire. These include the world-fellowship group, which studies international problems and current events; the social service group, which makes trips to reform schools and institutions, studying social service in Kentucky; the hobby group, which includes dancing, swimming, handicraft and soap sculpture; the worship group, which makes surveys of the various forms of worship in different churches, and the music group, for those girls who enjoy singing together.

Commuters and town girls have their own group, the Dutch Lunch club, which meets weekly at a luncheon meeting, and freshmen have their own group, in which they hold discussions and hear guest speakers. Other activities are the book club, the transfer club, the publicity group and the social group.

Information can be obtained from Elizabeth Cowan, Y. W. C. A. secretary, at the Woman's building, or from any member of the finance committee, concerning dates of meetings, and pledge fees. Broadway Hit To Inaugurate Guignol Season

"Personal Appearance" To Open Run At Theatre On October 26

The Guignol theatre will present for its initial production of the season "Personal Appearance," a satire on the personal tours of movie stars, which has just been off Broadway for a year, and which is still touring professionally.

"Personal Appearance" portrays the point of view that is held by the legitimate theatre about the mannerisms and methods of the movies as they are today. This play is the play that carried Gladys George to Hollywood from Broadway, and landed for her the lead in "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," to be released soon.

The current production concerns the waitress who has risen to stardom, leaving affairs along her path as you would find milestones along the road denoting your progress toward a given destination. Her latest affair is with the young, hard-working man who is handsome, but cannot see through the glamor that is radiated by the actress, distressing his fiancée no little bit. The dialogue is extremely clever and modern.

Patron tickets are now on sale at the theatre box office, offering a genuine saving for those who wish to take advantage of the offer. The patron ticket is selling for $3 for six plays if bought before Nov. 1, and $3 for five plays if purchased after that time.

Rush-Week Ends Today With Rites In Memorial Hall

Women's Bidding Ceremonies To Take Place At 3 P. M. Today

Bidding ceremonies for the nine national sororities on the campus will be held today at 3 o'clock in Memorial hall, climaxing a two-week rushing period of teas and special parties held for the benefit of incoming freshmen girls.

All functions during the rushing period were under the supervision of the Women's Pan-Hellenic council and governed under rules set up by this organization.

According to the rules for bidding, "during the bidding services, there shall be only Pan-Hellenic representatives on the campus. If sororities wish to furnish means of transportation to chapter houses for new girls, they may have two cars, which shall be stationed on the McVey hall drive. Only one girl is permitted to be in a car. She must remain in her car to wait for her girls. A Pan-Hellenic representative will take the girl to the sorority car."

Under the bidding system used, each girl is asked to write on a slip of paper her first, second, and third choices. The official bid of her first choice sorority is then given her. If she has no bid from her first-choice sorority, then the bid of her second choice is given her.

Kentucky Lineup Remains Intact Despite Minor Injuries; V. M. I. Reported To Be Strong

VISITORS ATTACK LED BY TRZECIAK

Light Workout Scheduled By Wynne For Friday Afternoon

By JOE QUINN
Kernel Sports Editor

After a week of exceedingly ragged practice sessions, Kentucky's vaunted Wildcats will face their most rugged opposition thus far when they clash with the Cadets of Virginia Military Institute in the season's third battle, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow on Stoll field.

The Kentucky lineup has been kept fairly free of serious injury but minor bruises are expected to keep several players on the sidelines. Tommy Coleman has not yet returned to scrimmages because of a strained side while Lexie Potter's leg injury has slowed him up considerably.

In meeting the Cadets, the Kentuckians will be taking on a highly-regarded foe. V. M. I. has won two games to date, conquering a strong South Carolina squad 24-7, last Saturday, for their most recent victory.

After two lean years, Coach Bill Rafferty of the visitors has turned up with a team reminiscent of V. M. I. teams of a decade ago, when the Cadets were able to hold their own with the best squads of the South. In the past two seasons, Rafferty's team won only three games but this year is set to atone for past errors by bringing in a winner.

Sophomore talent will play an important role in the Cadet lineup with the sensational Andy Trzeciak leading the offense. Trzeciak is the same boy who ran 101 yards against South Carolina last week for one of football's record-scoring runs. According to reports at least five sophomores will start in the fray along with Trzeciak.

The Wildcats have been showing poor form in workouts all week and only a sharp reversal of play will gain them a victory. Weak spots in the line play which were noticeable in the Xavier game last week, continue to show up and the coaches have been unable to make (Continued on Page Four)

SECOND STEP

Students and others seem fairly well satisfied with the new registration system. The fact is, students were registered so quickly and efficiently in September that very few of them have thought much about it since.

One thing that has not been forgot, though, is the general disorder and gross inefficiency which attended classification. All the improvement shown in the new registration plan went for naught when classification began.

In one or two departments, matters were extremely unhappy. The English department, which had to classify almost 900 freshmen in one day, was unable to complete the schedule of all the newcomers.

There is something essentially wrong in a system wherein 900 persons must be classified in one day. Sometime before the next enrollment period that system should be changed. It seems to this paper that those departments which ordinarily attract great numbers of students to their rolls should get their heads together and devise a system whereby classification would become as efficient and speedy as the new registration plan has proved itself to be.

RIGHT KIND OF PEP

Tonight when students gather for the first great pep rally of the year, there must be shown what might be called a formal informality or an orderly disorderliness so that the most good may be realized from the rally.

Although there should be some degree of spontaneity at a pep rally, students should, by and large, avail themselves to the directions of the yell leaders so that the plans which have been worked out to insure the success of the gathering may be consummated.

The little colored fellows who entertain with their absurd antics are, after all, not interested in the success of the rally. Likewise, students who encourage them by pitching coins to them and otherwise adding to the general boisterousness of the affair, would seem to be interested in their own amusement and not in forwarding the aims of the pep leaders.

Tonight's rally will set the pace for gatherings to be held during the remainder of the football season. Every student, remembering this, should do his share in insuring the success of it.

When that man in the blue uniform and the brass buttons follows you on a motorcycle?

When you find that you're in the scandal column?

When you lose your schedule card, and can't remember what class comes next?

When the column ends suddenly—like this?

Here's something new for the idle college children to try: Place a penny on a silver dollar. Place a slimy, slippery short worm on the penny. Gather your friends around and bet them that the worm won't crawl off the penny onto the dollar. You're a cinch to win, because it is claimed, a current is created in the worm's body by contact between the two metals, causing the wormie-squirmie to die.

This Campus
and
That World

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

When it was stated in this column last week that man as a race is an unthinking extrovert, and that women are fast approaching men in their carelessness, it was said in all seriousness. I believed it then; I believe it now.

A short walk across the campus will reveal it on every side. Take a look at the Commons after the noon rush. The floor is littered with debris of all sorts. Every table top is so filthy it must be washed. A staff of men work over an hour to set it to rights.

The same is true of the stadium after a football game. Broken bottles, newspapers, cigar and cigarette butts cover the place. Several men work several days straightening it out.

A beautiful library has been erected. It should seem that students would be proud of that structure, yet as you start out any of the doors there is an ugly smudge where hundreds of careless men have scratched matches because they couldn't wait another second to be outside of the hall.

Ugly paths have been trod into the once beautiful lawns that surround our buildings. A short cut from here to there soon attracts hundreds of hastening feet. Then comes the barbed wire, a sight more hideous perhaps than the paths, but placed there in an attempt to prevent those "cow trails." The paths cows make are a result of following a leader in an unthinking procession.

"Unthinking procession!" Is it possible that the same motive that leads us into the unthinking procession also forms our opinion on things public? Do we tumble out of our cribs into the following a leader to whither we know not, yet always with the idea that "we" have made our own decisions, shaped our own destinies?

It is egotistical of us to believe that we have a free will? I rather believe it is. Man is decidedly that way. Does it not hurt his pride to be classed as a mammal, to be called "animal?" Has not the idea that we have descended from monkeys gotten his goat, so that trials have been held to prevent such a theory from being taught in the public schools?

After observing fellow men for a short time it is not hard for me to believe that we are all descended from monkeys, or some other order of lower animal. I used to watch Dean Anderson's monkeys. They weren't so dumb, yet not one of them ever considered for a moment the health or happiness of another. To some extent man will consider and assist his fellow man but the chances are that it will have to be called to his attention before he notices.

Now if my saying that we are all descended from monkeys gets your goat, to appease your wrath, boost your ego, you may change it to "man has descended from monkeys or some other lower order." Then there is also this to consider, others believe as I do, so don't blame me for the idea.

Perhaps the most egotistical thing man has ever done was done centuries ago. When civilization began to creep into our scheme of things, man began to grope for a God. Something was there. They felt it, realized it. A great controlling power. Yet man, in his infinite smallness of mind, couldn't resist the temptation to "imagine" God in his own likeness—the likeness of a man.

Here on earth with these great schemes of government being attempted by strong leaders there is always that undercurrent idea that all men should be treated equally. A revolution, bloody or bloodless, takes place and a new order is instituted. Soon the inequality of men begins to show. The leaders come from the sharper classes and a duller less ambitious group descend the scale.

But, whether or not there is money to be gained, there is always power at the top. The dogs at the bottom are at first wistfully wanting; then lustfully wanting. So there you are right back where you started from. The under dogs wanting; the upper dogs having and holding. Discontent is bred, revolution is spread and you have a Spain, a France, a Russia, a Cuba. After all, now aren't the blunders of capitalism, preferable to the atrocious experiments going on now in foreign countries.

Hooley
Pollui

By FRANKLIN DRYDEN

BULLETIN

It's an unwritten law, copied from the Shawnee Indians, that a scandal columnist should never write about his own campus and amorous activities. This custom compounded with my short-sightedness are the reasons why one of the best morsels for Hooley Pollui has heretofore been unpublished.

To my chagrin I found out Tuesday night that today's dirt diplomat, Franklin Dryden, has been groggy with happiness for the past two weeks because he has pinned Mary Morly Kirkpatrick, a sophomore from Randolph-Macon. You can get an idea of Franklin's power when I tell you that he pinned her when this semester was but one week old.

So, if Dryden & company will excuse my negligence, may I express their public's and my congratulations. KERLER.

By gosh, I have got to come to an understanding with someone, or it's the bug house for me. All these fearful writeups predicting dire results in Saturday's game have got me so upset about the thirteen points I gave that until reassurance is offered in large quantities, I'll never be able to get my mind on such a thing as this column. Nevers, I promise that if you will open up plenty of holes for our thoroughbred to tear through, there will never be another thing about you in the column unless it's a stadium full of roses.

And while on the subject of our conglutated co-eds, the astounding mental intellect of Virginia Eversole, transfer, is brought to mind. After keeping her date waiting an hour before they start to the Xavier game, they finally drive off. About ten miles out on the Cincinnati road, like all girls do, she suddenly remembers that she left a very important article behind, so the unfortunate sucker goes back to Lexington. This time everything goes smooth and they reach Cincy without mishap. As they walk up to the ticket gate, Virginia proudly exhibits her brainstorm, and cause of return to Lexington. It's her student ticket book. Yeah, he brought her home and everything.

Sigma Chi Harold Bush seems to be losing no time in getting well acquainted with the freshmen of the other sex as the evident bestowing of all his masculine pulchritude on one of the feminine sex, carrot-topped by nature, Miss Virginia Harden, if appearances in the Commons mean anything. And the same can go for ATO pledge, Phil Angelucci, who is getting mental relaxation in the delightful company of one "Babe" Combe.

The china blue-eyed baby of the house of Kappa, Nellie "Turnstile" Craik, has intimated strongly to her beloved sisters that she has amorous intentions toward Tunli's man, John Breckinridge, and that every one had better step aside or be caught in the riptide.

Elizabeth Crain says that it would be wonderful to be pinned but as far as taking little Fred Fugazzi's was concerned it was ridiculous, that he was just a little brother to her, and could never be anything else.

Promised "Booger" Brown not to say anything about it, but it's just one of those things too good to keep. He was stood up on his third date this last Tuesday night. We suggest getting insured by Lloyds and cleaning up a fortune.

Went down to the Tavern the other night and it looked like a revival of the Commonologists. Saw at one table, Joe Huddleston, Jim Goforth, Bill Tracy, Wilson Houston, and Ticky Scholtz all enjoying watching the coeds get their cokes before being dragged to the two-bit dance. At another table was seen Prof Schick with several of his students gathered around talking themselves up a blue streak. And back in the corner were the old reliables, Joe Arvin, and his long-lasting pinee, Anna Bess Clark, with Joe enjoying his customary bottle of beer. Up by the nickel victrola where she could urge him to put the usual coins in the slot were Patty Field Van Meter and sucker, Dick Chaveaut, who says that she has about as much chance of getting over with him as a penny of finding change. Alumnus school teacher, Tridelt Margie Fieber, just happened by and said she was home for a rest cure of several days.

Enemy Camps

By MACK HUGHES

The University of Kentucky football squad will bring to a close this afternoon, the hardest week of practice that it has experienced so far this season. Although the 21-0 victory over Xavier was a safe enough margin, the Wildcats showed mistakes and flaws in their playing that should have been ironed out by now. With much tougher opponents to be met and the old Boy Scout motto of "Be Prepared" on his mind, Coach Chet Wynne spent most of the practice sessions stressing defensive work and importance of stopping the enemy attack.

Coupling a brilliant and speedy backfield with a powerful line which may outweigh the Wildcat's forward, the Virginians present a serious threat to Kentucky's hopes.

The University of Kentucky football squad found a week of hard practice waiting for them as Coach Chet Wynne began preparations for the tougher games to come. Although the 21-0 victory over Xavier was a safe enough margin the Wildcats showed mistakes and flaws in their playing that should have been ironed out by now. Work this week can be counted on to be much harder than that which the players have experienced to date.

Virginia Military Institute, defeated the University of South Carolina eleven, Saturday, while the Big Blue team was beginning preparation for their meeting tomorrow.

Featuring Andy Trzeziak's 101-yard run for a touchdown, the Cadets exhibited a much stronger team than they were expected to have. With their ranks strengthened by additions from last year's powerful freshman team, the Cadets should offer a more severe test

R. O. T. C. TEAMS WILL COMPETE

Six Military Companies To Enter Competition In Intramurals

Lt. Colonel B. E. Brewer, commanding officer of the R. O. T. C. unit at the University, has consented to cooperate with the Intramural department in an effort to organize the six military companies into units for athletic competition.

Each company has three platoons which average about fifty-six men each. The tentative plans include at least one team from each platoon making a total of eighteen teams in the six companies.

Although team sports such as touch football, volleyball, basketball, free throw, and diamond ball will be highly encouraged, the individual sports as well will be emphasized. The plan includes individual awards for winner and runner-up team members and a large trophy for the company they represent.

It is hoped that the new plan of R. O. T. C. competition will encourage many Independents to participate who heretofore have not shown a great deal of interest in the organized team sports.

Touch football has been added to the Intramural sports curriculum for this year. All games will be played on the intramural field behind the main gym. House managers are requested to call at the Intramural office for the rule sheets for his sport and sign up for the practice. Entries are due in the 12th and play will start the 15th.

The time limit on tennis, golf, and horseshoe, singles and doubles, has been extended till Monday, October 5, because of inclement weather and the large number of matches which had to be played off.

KITTENS TO PLAY FIRST GAME TODAY

Coach L. B. Pribble's Kentucky Kittens open their 1936 football campaign this afternoon in meeting the Morehead Eagles. The entire squad of 35 men will leave at 8 a. m. for the trip to Morehead.

Little is known of the relative strength of the two teams as this is the first game for each squad. Last year, the Eagles gave the Kittens a terrific battle on Stoll Field before finally going down to defeat.

According to Coach Pribble, this year's freshman outfit is considerably weaker than the 1935 eleven. He stated that the backfield especially was weak, due to the small size of the candidates. The backs than did either Maryville or Xavier.

The dark horse of the Southeastern conference, Georgia Tech, showed great strength in crushing Presbyterian, 55-0. Touted as being one of the best squads to come out of Atlanta since the Yellow Jackets went to the Rose Bowl, this team is a severe threat to Wildcat hopes for an undefeated season. They met in Atlanta, a week from Saturday in what is supposed to be the making or breaking point for both teams.

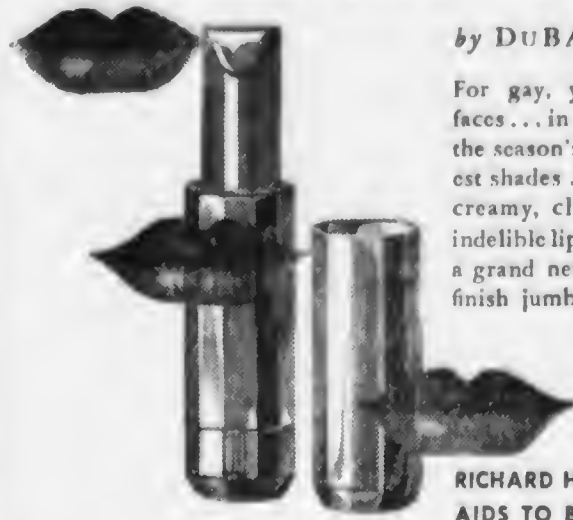

Alabama showed a return to power when they defeated Howard, 34-0. Last years game between the same teams ended in a 7-7 tie. Tennessee had trouble in downing Chattanooga, 13-0. Manhattan and Washington & Lee crushed their opponents easily; the first defeating St. Bonaventure, 32-7, and the latter taking Elora to the tune of 27-0. Clemson revealed a strong team in their game with V. P. I., winning, 20-0. Florida does not play until October 3.

Co-Ed Describes Experiences Of Hectic Rush Week

By REBECCA PATTON

"Which do you like, Mary?"

"What party are you going to? You know, I got six invitations for this afternoon and I don't know what to do."

"All the girls are so sweet that I can't make up my mind. Honestly, I've heard of girls having worries, but none like this."

Worry! Worry! What to do! Where to go! Which to go! Teas, parties, dances, bridge, fashion shows, treasure hunts.

This is sorority rush week at the University! Should there be a longer rush period?

"No," says Miss Blanding, dean of women. "It is true that the sorority girls do not have time to really know the rushes because it is all so new and different to them that they are always being proper rather than natural."

Each year after rush season Pan-Hellenic meets and changes its system, only to find new difficulties arising the next fall. There seems to be no solution to the "perfect" rushing system. However, Miss Blanding thinks that the idea carried out in an Indiana univer-

GRID DUCAT SALES REACH NEW HIGH

Football interest in central Kentucky seems to have reached a much higher peak than it did in 1935. The athletic association has released the information that it has sold about three times as many tickets to the Wildcats' games, both those already played and those to be played, than it had at the corresponding time last year.

More than four times as many tickets have been sold for this year's game with Alabama than had been sold this time last year to the Tennessee melle, last season's feature.

sity is much better than the one established here, and that is to have rush season before school opens and then "new girls can have the friendliness and advice that can not otherwise be had during this time."

"It is indeed a problem that we are still trying to solve," says Miss Blanding.

SEEING SPORT STUFF

By JOE QUINN
KERNEL SPORTS EDITOR

WHEN Virginia Military Institute brings its Flying Squadron to town tomorrow to do battle with Kentucky's Wildcats, they will be renewing one of the South's old rivalries. The series between the two Lexington teams got its start way back in 1892 when the Cadets smothered our boys under a 34-0 count.

Since that game twelve others have been played and the Wildcats have won nine of them, with the military men taking three more. After that one contest in what passed for the "gay" nineties, the clubs did not clash until 1912 and again the Cadets won, this time by the baseball score of 3-2, in what was evidently a pitcher's battle.

In 1927 the Kentuckians began to get tough and from that year until 1933, the last time the two teams collided, the Wildcats captured seven consecutive victories. The rivals took time out for the last two years but tomorrow will renew the classic.

And when the teams get together out on the Stoll lot this time a real ball game is expected. The squad from Lexington, Va., is definitely no set-up, as many of the critics, with us included, believed when the game was signed last spring. At that time, however, there was ample reason to believe that the Cadets would be little more than a good warm-up for Wynne's Wildcats.

In the past two seasons the Squadron had won but three games. Three victories in two seasons was not a particularly auspicious record and there was every reason to suspect that the Virginians were in the football doldrums.

Evidently V. M. I. supporters reasoned the same way. At any rate last year the Institute turned up with a powerful plebe squad which created an impressive record by walloping the yearling groups from several nearby institutions. And members of last year's plebe powerhouse are forming the nucleus of the Cadet varsity this season.

Against South Carolina, themselves no easy pickings, Coach Bill Rafferty started no less than nine sophomores and judging from the results, the new-comers acquitted themselves in admirable fashion. The Cadets bring 38 players to Lexington and 19 of them will be sophomores.

Their outstanding back, the triple-threat Andy Trzeclak, whose sensational 161-yard touchdown dash focussed the national spotlight upon him last week is only a sophomore. But he is reputed to be able to do everything that a good back should do and do them all skillfully. Along with kicking, passing and running, Trzeclak also calls signals for the Cadets, and he has played sixty minutes of both games to date.

While their ace sophomore does much of the work, yet the Virginia team has other good ball-toters and a rangy, powerful front line. The advance guard is led by big Jim Farley, 196-pound captain of the Cadets, who is one of the few seniors on the team. Farley bears the reputation of being a tough customer in the line and it has been his destructive charges in leading offensive thrusts that have had a great deal to do with V. M. I. scoring stabs.

Kentucky, then, may be assured of meeting with plenty of opposition from the Old Dominion's Squadron. And if we are to judge from recent practice sessions, the Wildcats may not relish the task of trying to halt tomorrow's opposition.

Tuesday afternoon the local squad went through the poorest practice session that we have seen in four years. The varsity worked on defense against V. M. I. plays which were being run by the freshmen and gave a miserable exhibition. The frosh were opening holes in the line with regularity and the yearling backs were hitting the holes unerringly for substantial gains.

Not only was the line being riddled but the varsity backs assigned to defending posts were missing tackle after tackle as the Greenie ball-carriers came out into the clear.

On Wednesday afternoon, Coach Wynne gave the firststringers only dummy scrimmage but sent the second team through offensive drill against the frosh and still there was but slight improvement to be noticed over the previous day. In fact, the Chetters had to summon the entire squad in extraordinary session, Wednesday night, for another hour and a half of dummy scrimmage inside.

What then, you will probably say, can be expected against the V. M. I. offense, if the varsity can't stop a crude imitation of it presented by a squad of green freshmen. Well, that's just a matter of conjecture and if it could be figured upon in advance, there would be no percentage in playing at all.

Notwithstanding the fact that the 'Cats have been showing so poorly in workouts, we still believe, at least in their offensive power. They are going to match the Cadets, point for point, when it comes to scoring. The difficulty may come if they cannot do any better than match points. If they can but tighten up defensive screws, they will take the ball game.

Earlier in the season, Kentucky was the Rose Bowl prospect. Since last week V. M. I. has been nominated and it may rest with the Wildcats to second the nomination. Strangely enough, Kentucky may be the underdog tomorrow, against what has been, according to pre-season dope, an apparent setup.

On the basis of the past week's poor practice showing we are going to select the local lads to triumph by a single touchdown. That may sound paradoxical but we are counting on the boys to get all that bad football out of their systems in practice before trotting onto Stoll Field. Yes, and I know you hope so, too.

VET V. M. I. BACK

WALT CLARK - HALF BACK

Clark, speedy halfback, is one of the few seniors on the Cadet roster.

THESE FOOLISH THINGS

Next, perhaps, to that idyllic, romantic interlude in life known popularly and poetically as the "honeymoon," comes the first few weeks of college as the most exhilarating sustained period in the lives of modern youth. Upperclassmen remember those first weeks of their freshman year when time zipped along on wings of mercury, harried by innumerable scurrying events. And freshmen now in their turn are steeped in fascination, bewildered pleasantly by a world entirely new, and the more alive and impressionable of them betray it with a sort of happy wonder in their eyes.

HARRIERS TO MEET FOR FIRST TIME

There will be a meeting at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon in the basement of the Alumni gym for all those who wish to try out for the cross-country team. Both freshman and varsity squads will be organized and although a definite schedule has not yet been made out, there will be several meets for both squads.

are we and last indeed to speak parables of the dancing crasshopper and the industrious ant. But it is pleasant to ruminate among memories of past years, remembering the incident of this fellow student and that, and then to wonder to what extent history will repeat itself in the persons of the class of 1940.

How many of them will awake from their present pleasant state to a realization of the real purposes of values of college within a reasonable length of time, and how many of them will come, just as some members of the class of 1897 are still in that condition having never recovered from the intoxication of their first weeks in college? We wonder.

No freshman need apologize for the sensation he is experiencing that he has been dropped suddenly and magically in a world of dream and idyll, because college is such a world. Most of us live here on a higher plane than at home. It is a leisurely, luxurious existence; a place where pleasant surroundings, pleasant personalities and pleasantly alert minds meet in a near surfeit of pleasantness.

But don't fool yourself into believing that here you have found life and now that you have awakened to its existence, all the rest of your days will be spent in just such a glow of fascination. College is not life; it is artificial, it is adolescent, it is misleading, sordidness and tragedy, while here at college we study leisurely and play industriously, in truth a community of Neros fiddling while the Rome outside snags and crackles in the flames of social unrest and political turbulence.

Enjoy while you can the luxury of collegians, but don't delude yourself as to its permanence. It ends with disgusting finality when you step outside the college campus, when you go back to the world of commerce and housekeeping. —The Miami Student.

Reporter Tells Of Antics Practiced In Bygone Days

By ED MEUSLER

Would you climb to the roof of the Law building, edge your way along the steep slate shingles, hang from a rope around the turret with a paint bucket in one hand and a brush in the other, just to paint the numerals of your class?

Somebody did just that as you can see by inspecting the turret atop the Law building.

Back in the "good old days" when a man became a senior he was granted the privilege (?) of wearing corduroy pants, a high necked sweater and a derby hat, and was allowed to carry a cane and grow a mustach, the idea seemed to be that the class that was able to leave its numerals in the highest place on the campus, was the object of much admiration. Naturally this created much inter-class strife, such as the time that the freshmen ran up a flag on the pole in front of the Administration building and then cut the ropes. The Sophomores, not to be outdone, decided that it must come down, so standing at a safe distance from the mob of Freshmen gathered at the base of the pole to protect their flag, the Sophs calmly shot the flag down! Reports from old timers say that it sounded like the battle of Bull Run, and incidentally cost the price of a new ball for the top of the pole!

Along with this inter-class strife must be mentioned the stupendous annual classic, the tug-of-war between the Frosh and the Sophs.

This battle was much heralded for weeks ahead of time, and was held across Clifton pond, the winners dragging the losers through the icy waters of the pond and then dragging the steel cable which had been used in their victory down town on Main street where they raised Old Ned proper!

By the way, when the old man says to you the next time, that he don't know what the younger generation is coming to, ask him about a few of these:

The time a group of students carried a street car up to the Administration building, and when the car company offered to pay them to take it back to Limestone, they refused, thereby forcing the traction company to use the only way they could think of to get it down: by building a set of tracks up to the Administration building from Limestone!

The time six or eight students made a trip to the Ag farm bringing back sundry collections turned the cannon in front of the Administration building about so that it faced the building, primed it with gunpowder, loaded the cannon and plastered the face of the building! But they got caught and spent the next few days swabbing it off!

The tricks they pulled concerning the old factory whistle that was used to denote the end of classes, before the modern system of bells was used!

And the old cannon being used as a perfect place over which to turn Freshmen to facilitate padding.

These are only a few of the ancient and honorable traditions and stunts that have lived on this campus of ours, but if I can run down any more, I'll let you know.
